

Porto Ricco

Brazilian Steakhouse

History

Direct from the southern Brazilian high plains comes a centuries old way of cooking, where Gauchos spit roasted large portions of beef, pork, lamb and poultry over the glowing coals of open fire pits, preserving the meats' natural juices and rich flavours. Although nowadays pit fires are still used, Churrascarias (Rodizio Restaurants) replaced them for brick grills and became a place for feasting and freindship. Enjoy this sumptous taste of this rich dining tradition at Porto Ricco.
